Our university is currently developing a smart learning environment that can train students to enhance their presentation and discussion skills. It includes an automatic evaluation system that efficiently records, analyses, and evaluates the presenter’s presentation and discussion skills. We call such education promoted by the AI technologies "AI-Powered Education."