

Investigation by inter-societies research groups on atmospheric radionuclides after Fukushima Daiichi Nuclear Power Plant accident

*Kazuyuki Kita¹

1. Faculty of Science, Ibaraki University

Just after the accident in Fukushima Daiichi Nuclear Power Plant, various group studies of atmospheric radionuclides had been conducted. For example, Japanese Geochemistry Society-JpGU-J. Radiochemistry Society has started urgent sampling network of the atmospheric radionuclide since April 2011, and it continues in Fukushima, Koriyama, Mito/Hitachi and Marumori/Sendai. In this paper, these activities are presented.

Keywords: FDNPP accident, atmosphere, radionuclides