The current ecological crisis forces the philosophical consideration to reformulate the view of the world as the condition upon which humans live. In this presentation, I would like to argue the outline of the view with regards to the conceptions such as “the world apart from the human” and “the difference between human world and the earthly world.” The final aim of this presentation is to consider how the reformulation of the world view brought about by the stirring of the earth give us the suggestion for the reconsideration on the possibility of the collaboration between the history and the geoscience.
