

Space Science outreach of National Space Organization Taiwan

*Chun-Chieh Hsiao¹

1. National Space Organization

Space science is one of the most popular subjects for the young students and general publics. However, the material of space science is much less than the other subjects in the elementary/junior high school textbook. Students learn the space knowledge from museum, book, movie and educational TV program. National Space Organization (NSPO, Taiwan) hold the space science camp, competition, exhibition and TV program for the young students to further realize the knowledge about space science and satellite technology. More than 3 years of space science outreach experience and results will be seen in this paper.